Summary

Different studies have already been conducted so as to identify the characteristics of CSPF's retired members as the target population of the pension fund, and each study has focused on specific aspects of their lives. The major aim of this research study has been on looking into the demands and challenges being encountered by CSPF's retired members. The data were collected in 2020 using a survey questionnaire, and the sample comprised 1,200 respondents being selected from among the CSPF'S retired members from various provinces based on their level of development. The demands and challenges of the respondents were addressed focusing on different categories of pension benefit amount and livelihood, health status and medical care, leisure time and recreation activities, pension benefit adjustment, and the impacts of Covid 19 Pandemic.
